WHEELING, W. VA., MAY 27, 1886.

Some Reform in the Pension Office.
Mr. Ingalls has the knack of stirring up the Democratic side of the Senate whenever he speaks. Sometimes he cannot resist the temptation to toy with somebody who falls under his displeasure, inflicting with the sharp edge of his sarcasm something near akin to torture. His criticism of the Commissioner of Pensions, though merciless, was declared by Mr. Vorhees to be the kind of a performance. But it happened that the Commissioner was vulnerable, and Mr. Ingalls did not hit him harder than he deserved.

It is a fact that for years Commissioner Black has drawn a pension of $100 a month; that his ghastly wounds, out of which his friends have endeavored to make so much capital, have not kept him from practicing law, taking an active part in politics, stamping his State, and turning up for office in every campaign since the war.
There is at least a reasonable doubt as to the merits of General Black's case as a pensioner.

Where there has been much less doubt in the case of a Republican applicant, or of one who was already a pensioner, General Black has turned him down, rolled his eyes toward the White House and sent up a hurrah for retrenchment and reform.
Mr. Ingalls was able to strengthen his own position by citing the case of a blind Kansas soldier, the head of a family, who had left the edge of Commissioner Black's ax.
Yet in all this spasm of reform the Commissioner has "never thought of thinking of himself at all." That is to say, it has never occurred to him that he could save the country $100 a month and strengthen himself in the public confidence by striking himself from the pension roll. He has facility enough in keeping a poor veteran out of eight dollars a month, but his statesmanship has not soared high enough to take in his own case. He and the President are harmoniously carrying out a policy of retrenchment and reform as against the small fry, with particular regard to Republicans.

The country does not want its money squandered on pensions or in any other way. It does not desire to give pensions to impostors or to feed the pension sharks, who unfortunately have gorged themselves with a good deal of blood money.
But the country wants the disabled soldiers of the Republic treated fairly, even liberally. It does not want deserving men shut out from its bounty to enable any public officer or any political party to boast of a spurious article of economy.

General Black ought to cast the $100 a month out of his own pocket before he becomes so proudly virtuous. After that he may speak as one having clean hands and a pure heart.

Building Associations.

A reader desires to know what the Intelligencer thinks of building associations. The Intelligencer regards a well-conducted building association as a well-conducted man's friend. It induces him to make saving part of the business of his life. It opens the way for the profitable investment of his small savings. It makes it possible for him to buy a home.

Through the building association poor men have laid the foundation of fortune and populous cities have been built up.
No single thing has done so much to make Philadelphia a "city of homes," as as distinguished from New York, a city of tenements. Miles of Philadelphia streets have been lined with the comfortable homes of workmen who have put their savings in building associations.
Thousands of men in that city who are not classed as workmen—clerks, struggling professional men, men engaged in small trading—have built and now own homes which they never would have acquired in any other way.

A great deal of good has been done in Wheeling and more can be done in the same way. The number of our building associations could be largely increased with great advantage. The Intelligencer would be glad to know that every one of its readers who is not already provided has begun to build himself a home through a building association.

Fallacies in Monroe County.
Sir:—The people of Monroe County have come to the conclusion that a Legislature is unnecessary when the Executive can make or unmake laws to suit the times, so we only look on the coming election as to whether the Legislature will elect the next Senator—Goff if they can and Herold if they cannot. Hereford has always been a national man and opposed to secession, and is believed to be honest in his convictions, and is not an aspirant so far as I know. I am a Republican and hope we will have the Legislature on joint ballot. We expect this county will go Republican if we all pull together. Several Democrats are weary of Cleveland and reform and will not go that way any more. I hope they will stick. Times are as hard as usual in this county and less money than ever before.
Times are getting higher all the time.
The money is good at present. Stock is doing well and peace and quiet reigns politically.

Democrats and Re-ascendancy.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.
Sir:—Some of our papers in this part of the State have been echoing a statement made by the Wheeling Register to the effect that previous to the late assessment order of Governor Wilson the vexed question was virtually settled; that the Democrats were satisfied with Governor Jackson's decision of the matter. As respects this part of the country this statement is certainly a mistake. It is true the Democrats, as law-abiding citizens, respectfully submitted to Governor Jackson's decision, but as to anything like a willing or cheerful acquiescence or compliance with this order, it never could with truth be said to have been acknowledged by one in ten. Everybody in this section knows this to be a fact, and an official counting of Democratic noses would demonstrate it beyond dispute.

"PUBLIC OPINION"

Makes Some Inquiries About the Nallers'

Desires.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.
Sir:—Under the head of "The Gas Pipe Line," in your issue of this morning, the following occurs:
"Mr. Stephen Ripley, Vice President of the United Nallers, Eastern and Rollers of America, was in Pittsburgh Monday night and had a consultation with President William Flinn and other officers of the Wheeling National Gas Company, relative to the matter of the employment of a large number of unemployed mill men of Wheeling in the trenches in Wheeling and vicinity. Mr. Ripley said: 'There are from 150 to 200 of them who will be very glad to work in the city or suburbs of the wages paid by the gas company. We do not ask that the rule be made absolute in their cases, but only to give them the preference over outside labor. They are largely married men and can board at home. The oiling of the company required me very kindly, and assured me that they would do their best for our men.'"

Knowing you desire to do justice to both sides in these labor troubles that are so disastrously affecting the most vital interests of your city, and believing in your honest desire to give a fair hearing to both sides, I am induced to trespass upon your columns that I may say a word against injustice, especially when it affects a class that calls for the sympathy of every right minded man. I allude to the hard-worked and poorly paid laboring man.
There are hundreds of these in our city, to whom labor is as much a "trade" as the nailer is to the nailer. Many of these men have been out of work for months, thrown out by the nailers' strike. They are anxious and willing to work at any job that presents itself, and this is just what makes the difference between them and the nailers; for, whereas the laboring man wants work at $1.25 per day and cannot get it, the nailer is offered work at his legitimate trade at an average of six times that amount and won't take it. Yet when an opportunity long looked for, and much needed, turns up, the nailer steps in and tries to take this work from those to whom it legitimately belongs.

Who is the black sheep now? Will it take any disinterested man one second to answer the question? What right has Mr. Ripley to monopolize other men's work and not have the same term applied to him which he applies to others? Is it right to apply to others? If a man is a black sheep for accepting work, which was first offered to the nailers, and refused by them, what color and description of animal is that which deliberately tries to take away the work which belongs by right to other men who are anxious to do it? The West Virginia Natural Gas Company seems to have some fear of public opinion, although its fear in the first instance was unfounded and public opinion was with the class of men to whom they gave the work; but this is certain, if the striking nailer is given the preference to the exclusion of the legitimate working man, they will hear something from PUBLIC OPINION.

Wheeling, May 26.

What is the Point?

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sir:—How is it your honorable Board of Public Works advertising for bids to be closed on the tenth of the month and not open them until the twenty-fourth? Is that the way other cities do? Go to Steubenville or Youngstown, Ohio, or any other city, and see if they don't open their bids in public and very soon after they are received.

An Editor's Testimonial.

A. M. Vaughan, Editor of the Greenwich Review, Greenwich, Ct., writes: "Last January I met with a very severe accident, caused by a runaway horse. I used almost every kind of medicine to heal my wounds, which turned to running sores, but found nothing to do me any good till I was recommended Henry's Carbolic Salve. I bought a box, and it helped me at once, and at the end of two months I was completely well and able to go to work. I have since used it in all my wounds, and I never fail of telling my friends about it, and urge them to use it whenever in need."
